

Climate Change: A Perspective from the Arctic

November 9, 2009

A symposium at Harvard University in coordination with a meeting of the U.S. Arctic Research Commission

Northwest Science Building • Room B101 • 52 Oxford Street • Cambridge

2:30 Introduction and welcome

Daniel P. Schrag (Director, Harvard University Center for the Environment)

Mead Treadwell (Chair, U.S. Arctic Research Commission)

2:45 “Climate Change and the Arctic”

James J. McCarthy (Harvard University)

3:20 “Past Lessons for the Future of the Arctic”

Richard B. Alley (The Pennsylvania State University)

Konrad A. Hughen (Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution)

Peter Huybers (Harvard University)

4:45 Break

5:00 “Watching Greenland as the Arctic Warms”

Sarah B. Das (Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution)

James G. Anderson (Harvard University)

6:00 Conclusion

Daniel P. Schrag and James J. McCarthy

This symposium is free and open to the public. Sponsored by the Harvard University Center for the Environment.

environment.harvard.edu